The Teapet Tempest.

The Teaper Tempest.

The Democrats and their holy followers, the Independents, are in a white rigge. What between fury and amazement they can scarcely contain themselves. They have fired their great gun. It was, as they thought, double charged. Besides the usual loading, they had crammed if full of dirty missiles of every obtainable sort. They were like little beys who having stuffed their toy cannon to the muzzle; run behind the barn to hear it go od; and who stand, linger in mouth, in run behind the barn to hear it go on; and who stand, linger in mouth, in safety; but half afraid and wholly dalighted, all agog for the explosion.

Well, they hear it. But what an explosion! A little pull, a smothered fizzle, and twenty dirty missies duly vomited forth; a faint cheer from the urchins behind the barn, much stenel, chiefly blown among themselves, and all was over. The truth is, the whole Mulligan letter business, to use the phrase, is "played out." Everybody is sick of it. The Democratic and Independent journals have so loaded down their columns with it, they have run the changes on each letter, and each line, and each comma so long, that, to tine, and each comma so long, that to ine, and each comma so long, that, to the mass of even their own persuasion, the subject is nauscous to the last degree. That is the reason, if a reason or wanted beyond their intrinsic anniness and insignificance, why the last batch of Mulligan letters have so grievously disappointed those who published them and why, to finish with the metaphor, their gun has ever re-And this lame and impotent conclusion is the "answer to Maine!". sion is the "answer to Maine!" The Democratic party, weighted down by continual defeat, "hungry and thirsty," as Mr. George William Chrus declares, for "spoils," disgraced by the ineffaceable stigma of opposing nearly all patrictic measures for a generation, and now saddled by its Nemesis in the shape of a leader who turns out to be unavaluable as well as incombile on the very or a leader was turns out to be untwar-able as well as incapable on the very eve of battle, has no better ammunition than this wherewith to enter upon its coming and, perhaps, its final contest. The kall-hearted adhesion of Tammany and the growing schism; of liutler, verily, were hardly needed to verify the writing on the wall and assure the fated discomfiture.

As to the Independents, who mask regard their Democratic allies very much as Gulliver regarded his monstor friends of Brobdignag, they are in a very sorry plight. They have this exfriends or management of the lave this ex-very sorry plight. They have this east for their tedious parroting about latters, that they have the Mullian letters, that they have really nothing else to do. In forsaking their party they did not leave them selves another leg to stand upon. They enn not attack Republican dectrines and there are no Democratic dectrines to support. Thus, nothing is left to the miserable Independents but those arclear threadbare and empty documents.
They are chained to them as Sinbad was to the Old Man of the Sea. They are dooned to continue to the end with the chapter to chatter necessingly about the Mulligan letters. It is their numbers to chapter their necessingly. punishment for abandoning their party; and the sole misiotism, about this is, that it constitutes also the punishment of their remaining readers.

For the grand combination party of all the talents, Copperheads and Pharisees, self-righteous dudes and Tammany Hall men, forged-letter mangers and ny Hall men, torged-letter mangers and holy political perfectionists, this mouso brought forth by the laboring mountain, this popgun that was to have been a columbiad, this tempest in a tea-pot which their united genius has evolved, must be a bitter disappointment. But what would they have? They are justly served for the whole small, vulgar and unmanly ndiev they have pressed and unmanly policy they have pursued, and for which the people will treat them to a worse disappointment in November.—

Never toach laise morality. How exquisitely absurd to tell a girl that beauty is of no value, dress of no use! Beauty is of value, her whole prospects: Beauty is of value, her whole prospects and happiness in life may often depend upon a new gown or a becoming bonnet, and if she has five grains of common sense she will find this out. The great thing is to teach her their just value, and that there must be something botter under the bonnet than experty face for real happiness. But never sacrifice truth.—Sydnay Smith.
